ONE OF LARGEST VOTES IN HISTORY ANTICIPATED HERE

Fair Weather Predicted and That Will Help in Getting Out the Vote

TEMPLE POPULAR IN VALLEY

Congressman Will Poll Large Vote—Leaders Claim Much From Pennsylvania—Traveling Man, Who is Democrat, Tells of Hughes Possibilities

With fair weather—and fair weather is predicted—one of the largest votes ever cast in Charleroi is anticipated tomorrow. The usual large Republican majority is looked for. The county will go Republican largely too, according to the claims of the Republican leaders and admission of many of the leading Democrats. Generally over the country a Hughes victory is apparent, the tide having turned noticeably in his favor in the last ten days or two weeks.

The Charleroi registration approximates pretty close to 1,700. Probably a total vote of no less than 1,200 will be cast, and perhaps more. As one precinct official, electors are pretty well stirred up this year and will make an effort to get out. The vote in the first precinct, it is believed will run to 375.

Congressman Temple will poll a big vote in Charleroi and will carry the county by an overwhelming majority, according to the opinion of the leaders. A great many straight tickets will be voted and they will count heavily.

According to State Chairman W. E. Crow Pennsylvania will give Hughes a lead over President Wilson 300.000 or more, in the event of fair weather. A traveling man who is a Democrat and who landed in Charleroi after a tour which has taken him through various parts of the state declared it was "goodnight for Wilson" in this state. He said the easiest way to get into an argument in Pennsylvania was simply to state he was a Democrat.

New York will go Republican by a heavy majority, according to the claim of the state and national chairman. Numerous other figures are advanced to prove the Republican claim.

ANNIVERSARY OF LOCAL COUPLE REMEMBERED BY THEIR FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. John Oates were tendered a surprise at their home in North Charleroi Sunday, the occasion being the 23rd anniversary of their wedding. Many and varied were the presents given the couple, including silverware and table linen. Plates were set for 40 persons. Out-of-town guests were present from Altoona, McKeesport, Castle Shannon and Pittsburg. An enjoyable day was spent in music and song.

FIXES UP WIRELESS SYSTEM WITH WIRES ON TOP OF THEATRE

Instrument of Carl Rauschenberg One of Considerable Power—Sending Device Now Being Secured

The first theatre in the world so far as is known, to be equipped with a wireless telegraph system is the Coyle theatre on McKean avenue, where the machine operator Carl H. Rauschenberg has fitted up an apparatus of high power for receiving. With the aid of D. M. McCloskey, Esq., who qualified last summer for wireless operation, he will now proceed toward fitting up the apparatus for sending. Tests have proven the mechanics of the wireless system perefect. The wires are stationed high in the air from the top of the theatre. Tomorrow the apparatus probably will be given its first real test with the receiving of election returns.

ANOTHER MURDER IN THIS COUNTY

Body of Foreigner is Found Near McDonald Early Sunday Morning

KNIFED AND SHOT TO DEATH

Evidence of another brutal murder was produced Sunday morning early when the body of an unknown foreigner, thrust through and through with knife wounds and punctured with bullets was found at the east end of the Pennsylvania Railroad subway at Racoon, near McDonald Woodrow Zullers of Hickory and W. A Galbraith of Burgettstown made the discovery.

Not the slightest clue to the identity of the man was left by his assailants, nor a hint as to the circumstances in which he met his death. it is the general theory, however, that he was held up while walking along the railroad and when he tried to escape from the robbers was killed and the body thrown below onto the road. A story current was to the effect that the body had been carried in an automobile to the spot where it was found.

State troopers are working on the case.

TURKEYS PLENTIFUL BUT PRICES TO BE HIGH

Turkeys arereported exceptionally plentiful in the country districts near Connellsville, but there is no assurance that consumers will benefit. The farmers are sitting right tight for topnotch prices. They refuse to quote prices to anyone who endeavors to engage the birls for holidays. It has been predicted that by Thanksgiving turkeys may bring 50 cents apound, dressed, but it will not be because there is a scarcity.

OPERATORS PAYING BONUS TO MINERS

Extra Amount Being Disbursed to Workers Where They Work Without Layoffs—System Said to Have Helped Along in Production

Miners in the Monongahela valley, are being paid a bonus for working without a layoff, it has become known together with the regular scale of wages. The policy is said to be in effect in almost every mine in fifth and Sixth pools as well as a number in the fourth and a few mines have posted notices to that effect. The demand for coal by the steel mills manufacturing munitions for the allies is so great, that every mining company is finding no little difficulty in producing enough coal to supply the demand.

Notices have been posted at the Crucible plant on the Greene county side of the Monongahela river that a bonus of $3 will be paid to any miner who works twelve days in succession along with his regular pay, wrich is computed on the wage scale. Three shifts are working at Crucible, the mine being operated 24 hours. About 450 men are employed. The bonus system is said to have g otten marked results in increasing the production of the mine. It is said that the policy has been adopted by many other mines along the valley.

BURGLARS CARRY OFF QUANTITY OF EDIBLES

Groceries, Meat and Provisions Packed in Packing Box and Carried Off From Keeney Store at Monongahela —Five Dollars in Cash Taken.

Particular attention was given by thieves to edibles when they visited the James A. Keeney store on Sharman street, Monongahela, some time Saturday night. They packed up a quantity of food stuff in a packing box and carried it off without being interrupted in the least.

Entrance was effected by the front door being forced. Meat, various kinds of groceries, canned goods, bread and so forth were packed away in the box amounting to $25 or $30. Five dollars in cash was taken. There is no clue to the burglary.

OIL IS STRUCK IN EAST FINLEY TOWNSHIP FARM

Oil has been struck in the well being drilled on the George K. Gray farm, in East Finley township, by the Manufacturers Light and Heat company. The hole has filled fully 2,000 feet and will make at least a producer of 10 to 15 barrels on the present showing. Drilling will be resumed today and its production will likely be increased.

The strike was made in the Fourth sand, which has been penetrated to a depth of about nine feet.

Two other wells being drilled in the same section by the Manufactuers Light and Heat company will probably be brought in today. One on the Samuel Day farm, in Morris township, has already made a showing of gas. The other is on the Paden farm where it is expected the Big Injun sand will be penetrated during today.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their many kindnesses during the sickness and death of our beloved husband and father. Also for the many beautiful floral tributes.

TO INVESTIGATE PRICES, HONEST!

Conspiracy Reported to Exist on Part of Coal Operators

HEAVY PENALTIES PROMISED

High food prices are to be investigated. Attorney General Gregory at Washington, D. C. says so. He says:

"The department of justice is investigating the recent abnormal and suspicious increases in theprices of various necessities of life, especially coal.

"Wherever any such increase is found to have been due to conspiracy or other unlawful actions the department will invoke against the offenders, the severest penalties which the laws prescribe. The interstate commerce commission is also conducting an inquiry into the alleged shortage of coal cars, which middlemen claim is responsible for the rise in the price of coal."

It was said in high circles that facts have been uncovered which indicate a conspiracy on the part of coal operators and the coal carrying railroads to force up arbitrarily the price of coal.

MONEY ORDER TOWNS IN GREECE SUSPENDED

Information has been received at the local postoffice to the effect that the postal administration of Greene has announced the temporary suspension of international money order service in Castoria, Cavalla, Cojani, Drama, Florina, Maoussa and islands of Ohio, Crete, Mitylene and Sonas.

The space system as pertaining to Railway Postoffices become effective November 1, 1916. The system is in accordance with a new proposition doing away with the payment of the carriers on a basis of weight, the new plan calling for payment according to the number of mail cars used.

According to figures just compiled and tabulated the district along the river between California and Monongahela contributed $1,152.67. This sum will be handled through the proper sources.

Following is the amount taken at each town:

Monongahela	$81.66.
Smithton	$15.00.
Monessen	$194.12.
Charleroi	$193.91.

WICKERHAM SETS BUSINESS AHEAD SO EMPLOYES CAN TAKE IN GAME

Sheriff Frank B. Wickerham has taken into consideration the fact that there is at Forbes Field, on Saturday afternoon, November 11, a rather important football contest in which Washington & Jefferson meets the University of Pittsburg team. The sheriff has also assumed that there may be some few attorneys and others who will go to see that game. Consequently he has established a precedent and has advertised all sheriff's sales set for Saturday, November 11, at 10:30 o'clock. This morning schedule will give attorneys and others interested time to get away at noon for Pittsburg. Heretofore the time for holding the sheriff's sales has been 1:30 o'clock. As a result in former years, when the two events came on the same day, some who were vitally interesed in the gridiron contest have had to stay at home and get the results by wire. This year there will be nothing to interfere.

Postscript—Incidentally it might be said that the sheriff's son, Harold Wickerham, is a member of the Red and Black football squad.

ELECTION DAY

National issues in which all mankind are concerned and state issues of the utmost importance will be decided at the polls tomorrow. It behooves every citizen to vote.

The contest of greatest concern will be for president of the United States. Whether Republicanism with its tried and true policies for protection of the American workingman and manufacturer, its glorious record of many years of fruitfulness and its bright promises for the future, or Democracy, experimental at the best, with policies that certainly are now sound, will rule the coming four years will be determined. Voters will decide whether Charles Evans Hughes, with his ringing declarations of America for Americans and a record of accomplishments to back every word he says, or Woodrow Wilson, a man of good intentions perhaps, but utterly lacking the qualities for a job so big, will be president. They will determine whether the future policy of government of the United States will be a firm one of even balance.

There is need of Republican government to set things straight down at Washington. The biggest issue is the national issue. At the end of the European war this nation is certain to face problems and difficulties that cannot now be even so dimly surmised, and it will take a firm hand to rightly guide the ship of state.

Let every citizen vote for only by a free ballot can there be true representation, but let there be no misunderstanding, no misconception of conditions. The right vote, the safe vote will be a vote for Republicanism.

WHERE HE STANDS

No man need be in the slightest doubt what Charles Evans Hughes stands for. Here is his platform in his own words:

"You ask what road I propose to travel? There are the milestones which mark it:

"An executive responsible to the whole nation.

"A cabinet chosen from the ablest Americans.

"A foreign policy that stands courteously but firmly for American rights.

"A flag that protects the American in his lawful rights wherever his legitimate business may take him.

"A preparation for trade competition which shall protect all groups of American workmen.

"A government oversight of business which will fearlessly eliminate abuses, but will act on the assumption that the average business man is honest.

"And finally a domestic policy which looks to industrial peace and to sound and permanent prosperity based upon the development of American trade and the building up of American industries.

"We Americans are in one boat. You cannot strike a blow at one group without injury to all. Common justice and fair play will settle our difficulties if suspicion and bitterness are let alone. There are the principles by which I propose to be guided."

SHOPPING STARTED

It sounds strange to talk Christmas shopping before the approach of Thanksgiving has been heralded, but it is not a foolish idea. If every person had their shopping done before the first part of December, leaving opportunity for a quiet cleaning up of final odds and ends, all of us would do better and feel better.

Storekeepers say people dislike the talk of Christmas until Thanksgiving is over. Perhaps this was true a few years ago, but certainly it is not now. The parcel post innovation and the growth and development of the Christmas giving idea has brought about a rather wonderful transformation. To say that Christmas buying has already started is stating nothing more than the truh.

GINGLES' JINGLES

THE WAITER.

Is the waiter to blame that goes bughouse? We ask you to answer us no, they give him a pain and they drive him insane when they pipe to the waiter to blow, to travel at once to the kitchen and bring in a [illegible] slice of fresh cantaloupe and then [illegible] to the [illegible], "have it cold with [illegible] on the side." The waiter [illegible] plants it in front of the [illegible], the dignified gink takes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] waiter [illegible] [illegible] from the [illegible]'s head, [illegible] will be best [illegible] [illegible] eye, until the old [illegible] and then the new waiter went [illegible], [illegible] his [illegible], he tossed his hat, when the dignified man looked the [illegible] cantaloupe in the face, and boosted the [illegible] of lemon right over the [illegible] and squeezed. We don't know the which, but such whatness is rich, for the guy took it down and looked pleased. We don't know the why of such stuntses, the reason is far fetched at best, we decided the guy for once thought he would try, the effect of the real acid test.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The top floor tenant had a grievance

"The roof leaks," he said, "and if you can't do something to stop it—"

"Leaks? Nonsense," returned the landlord. "None of the people in the other flats say so."

A youngster who is much given to philosophical reflection recently propounded this query to his mother:

"Mother, if it is true that we are made of dust, how is it that we don't get muddy when we drink?"

"I'm always glad when I hear of a man who has stopped drinking. It's a praiseworthy thing to do."

I don't know about that. It depends on the motive."

"Depends on the motive? Could a man positively have anything but a good motive for becoming a total abstainer?"

"Oh, yes. I know a man who quit drinking because it interferred with his poker playing. He found that it gave him a decided advantage in the game to remain sober while the other fellows drank."

SWEPT AWAY THE MOORS.

Grimaldi Saved Monaco and Was Made Ruler of the Tiny Land.

Did you ever hear of the most distinguished of the Grimaldi family, not the Genoese general who remained at home and fought for his own country, nor yet the artist who did heroic stunts on canvas, nor the sixteenth century Grimaldi who died by the hand of an assassin in the palace at Monaco, but the tenth century ancestor of that prince who saved Monaco from the Moors? His was an achievement worthy of a true soldier of fortune.

The tiny principality, perched on its seagirt cliff had been settled by the Greeks even before Athens became the greatest city of the civilized world. It was one of the cultural outposts of Rome, and in the fifth century it was an important center of Christianity.

Then the Moors crossed the Mediterranean, extended their sway over Spain and seized the ancient Herculis Monoeci Portus and gave over its churches and monasteries to the infidels. For 200 years they defied the soldiers of Europe, and then Grimaldi came. There had been many wars in Genoa, and here was a chance for a Genoese captain.

When his military genius had driven the Moors into the sea, he was rewarded by being made absolute monarch of a country fifty-three miles in circumference.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

When Shaw Was Married.

"I was very ill when I was married," Bernard Shaw once wrote, "altogether a wreck on crutches and in an old jacket which the crutches had worn to rags. I had asked my friends, Graham Wallas and Henry Salt, to act as witnesses, and, of course, in honor of the occasion they were dressed in their best clothes. The registrar never imagined I could possibly be the bridegroom. He took me for the inevitable beggar who completes all wedding processions. Wallas, who is considerably over six feet high, seemed to him to be the hero of the occasion, and he was proceeding to marry him calmly to my betrothed when Wallas, thinking the formula rather strong for a mere witness, hesitated at the last moment and left the prize to me."—"George Bernard Shaw—His Life and Works."

A Snake's "Leap."

A naturalist denies that it is true that a snake ever "leaps" at its foe or prey. Except the cobra, no snake can raise more than a third of its length from the ground, though there are instances in which rattlesnakes, probably unconsciously, have gained an extra leverage from a wall of rock immediately behind them and so struck farther than the ordinary range.—London Spectator.

The Library of the Bible.

The Bible is not a book, but a library—perhaps I should rather say a literature. It is composed of sixty-six different books, written by between forty and fifty different authors—written centuries apart, in different languages, to different peoples, for different purposes, in different literary forms. It is the selected literature of fifteen centuries. It includes law, history, poetry, fiction, biography and philosophy. It is to be read as a literature, judged as a literature. One may therefore reject a book from this collection of literature and yet believe in the literature. It is not like a painting which either is or is not the work of one master. It is a gallery of paintings, in which some works may be originals and others copies.—Lyman Abbott.

Her Appeal.

"Who is that?" he asked nervously as he heard a footstep in the hall.

"Only papa," she whispered.

He moved about uneasily.

"Don't be afraid," she murmured. "You can surely trust papa."

"I don't know," he said doubtfully.

"Oh, Arthur," she cried, throwing her arms about his neck appealingly, "you certainly ought to! Nobody else in town will."

STATE RIVERS REQUIRE STUDY

Legislature Will Be Asked to Investigate Streams

NEED FOR REGULATOIN

The next session of the legislature of Pennsylvania will be asked to take definite steps toward the establishment of adequate plans for the regulation of rivers for the combined objects of flood prevention, aid to navigation, improved water supply and the development of water power. Consideration of this subject is now being given by communities affected by floods and the result of this work will be incorporated into a bill which will be introduced in the legislature next January.

In the Pittsburgh district a comprehensive survey and study of the watersheds of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers has been made in conjunction with the state Water Supply Commission, and this has developed a system of treatment for these rivers and the one which has been approved by some of the ablest engineers of the country, including those connected with the war department at Washington, who have charge of all government river work in the country. It is generally accepted that the treatment proposed for the regulation of rivers in Western Pennsylvania can be applied with equally good results to the streams in other parts of the state.

The plan proposed for the Pittsburgh situation is in effect the construction of 17 safely built reservoirs at the headwaters of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers and their tributaries. The purpose of the reservoirs is to hold back the flood waters in times of freshets, the stored water to be released at times of drought to aid in navigation, and for other beneficial purposes. Those engaged in this investigation discovered after five years of active study that floods are increasing in volume and frequency while the periods of drought are becoming more numerous. It was, heretofore, their aim to ameliorate both conditions and this they claim they can do by the construction and operation of the reservoirs.

The field studies made by several corps of competent men under the personal supervision of public spirited Pittsburgh engineers developed the fact that natural reservoir sites actually exist whose combined capacity is sufficient to prevent the highest flood known to Pittsburgh by retarding the freshets and that the same stored waters would materially assist in maintaining a continuous navigable stage from Pittsburgh to Cairo the year round.

Many other sections of Pennsylvania have flood and low water troubles which would more than likely be relieved if the same plan that is proposed for the rivers at Pittsburgh were adapted to these streams. It is the intention of those interested at Pittsburgh to consider the river regulation problem as applied to the entire state before causing any new legislation to be introduced at Harrisburg.

STATE WILL NOT PAY ENTIRE COST

River Regulation Plans Provide For National Aid

GOVERNMENT IS INTERESTED

Although plans are being formulated to ask the next legislature to take up the question of river regulation it is not the purpose to propose that the state shall entirely finance the construction of the necessary works. It is the intention to urge that the state take the initiative in bringing about the co-operation of the federal government with the state and local committees affected and to lead in the preparation of a comprehensive plan of stream control

It is looked upon as important at this time for the state to take a firm grasp upon its water problems. Transportation, flood prevention, reclamation, water supply and other incidents of stream now are questions of extreme importance to the commonwealth. These questions present [illegible] aspects from the national, the state and the municipal viewpoints and their solution cannot be adequately and efficiently worked out except by some plan of harmonious and [illegible].

The State of Pennsylvania standing [illegible] between the federal government with multitudinous demands pressing upon it, and the counties and municipalities with their limited powers, should take the lead in the preparation of a comprehensive plan of development. It is this that the new legislature will be asked to do. With the state on record as favoring such projects it is expected that little difficulty will be met in inducing the federal government to provide its share of the cost.

To pave the way toward joint co-operation between the federal and state governments and local communities a bill has been presented to Congress by Congressman W. H. Coleman, and is now pending there. This is a bill "Providing for the control of the flood waters and the regulation of the stream flow of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers and tributaries, and for other purposes."

Nature warns you when your bowels are stopped up. The filth from your system is backing instead of going out. NEW SEEBURG ORGAN INSTALLED AT COYLE

The new Seeburg pipe organ-orchestra purchased last week Mananger R. S. Coyle has been installed in the Coyle theatre ready for use at today's shows. A force of five men from Pittsburg worked over Sunday to get the instrument in shape for use. Orchestral rolls for some of the highest class of music were provided and upon trial the instrument was found to be perfect. The organ instrumentation is as wonderful as the orchestral work. One of the wonders of the organ is the expression it automatically gives to selections. It has "a human touch."

EATING TO LIVE.

Rules by Which Good Health May Be Gained and Retained.

Herewith I give a few general suggestions for those who desire health, writes Edward B. Warman, A. M., in the Nautilus:

No one can have health who eats too much.

No one can have health who eats too often.

No one can have health who eats too many kinds of food at the same meal.

No one can have health who eats when tired, hurried, worried, anxious or excited.

No one can have health who rises late, gulps down a hearty breakfast and then sprints for the car.

When you have eaten do not wonder if it will agree with you. When you begin to wonder trouble begins. Say goodby to it, not expecting to hear from it again. If you fear it do not eat it; if you eat it do not fear it.

Be cheerful at your meals. A sour countenance will give you a sour stomach.

Praise your wife's cooking—if you can conscientiously.

If you go home with a grouch leave it out of doors, where the dog will get it—then shoot the dog.

The majority of people do not know how to live until they are ready to die, and then they are not ready to die because they have not rightly lived.

Genesis of the Playhouse.

Thespis in 536 B. C. acted his plays in a wagon. In 499 B. C., during the time of Aeschylus, creator of drama, the performances took place upon temporary wooden scaffolds, one of which having collapsed during a representation, the Athenians were induced to build the great theater of Dionysius, calling it the Lenaion, which was the first permanent stone structure of its kind. It required 100 years to erect it. There was no scenery, but the scene was decorated so as to represent the locality in which the action was going on. Roofless was his structure, but around the building were porticoes, to which the people retreated during rainstorms. Sometimes awnings were used to ward off the sun's heat.

Beauty of Pennsylvania.

In one respect only Pennsylvania is unchanged and unchangeable. Men have dealt harshly and shamefully by her, but nature has crowned her with beauty. Her founder, knowing nothing of his broad tracts, save that they were forest lands, gave to the new province the pretty name of Sylvania, and Charles II., always a postmaster of words, prefixed the Penn, for which pleasant conceit every son and daughter of the state owes him a grateful thought. Thus the word Pennsylvania perpetuates history, honors a noble name and symbolizes the loveliness of the land, a land of woods and waters, hills and valleys, fat farms and rocky solitudes. The shrieking engine that drags its trainload of passengers through the valley of the Juniata, across ridge after ridge of the Alleghenies, past the Tuscarora gap and the succession of narrows—Long Narrows, Jack's Narrows, Packsaddle Narrows—has traversed a country so widely and nobly beautiful that, in Europe, it would attract the tourists of the world.—Agnes Repplier in American Magazine.

Sitting on a Tack.

A thing is tragic or humorous according to the point of view. The man who sits on a tack does not share the onlookers' amusement. In fact, he is not only pained at his own misfortune, but he is pained because he occasioned some one else to find a degree of pleasure in his unseemly plight.

Now, it is perfectly safe to make this positive statement in this connection—the person who witnessed the other's unfortunate encounter with the tack never deliberately sits on the same tack himself. Indeed, he is particularly cautious about sitting down anywhere soon thereafter without looking for a tack.

Nor is this an indictment of tacks. Tacks serve a very real and useful purpose in this world, but they have their place, which is not in localities where they may be sat upon.—William C. Lengel in Hoggson Magazine.

Caught Him Both Ways.

"I ask you to pay me this bill," said a tailor to a waggish debtor.

"Do you owe anybody anything?" asked the wag.

"No, sir," replied the tailor.

"Then you can afford to wait." And off he walked.

A day or two afterward the tailor called again. Our wag was not at his wits' end, so, turning to his creditor, he said:

"Are you in debt to anybody?"

"Yes, sir, I am sorry to say I am."

"Well, why don't you pay?"

"I haven't got the money," replied the tailor, with a woebegone countenance.

"That's just my case, my dear sir. I am glad to perceive that you can appreciate my position. I always respected your judgment, sir. Give me your hand, sir."—London Mail.

Some Geographical Doubles.

Accidental doubles of geography are very curious. There are the two totally unconnected Galicias, the one in Austria-Hungary and the one in Spain. As to the Carpathians, the doubling occurs between the ancient and the modern atlases. On the map of the ancients we find a people named Carpi in the north of what is now Hungary and north of them the Carpatus mountains. But "Carpathian" in Vergil, Horace and Ovid means something quite different. The Carpathian sea was the sea between Rhodes and Crete, from the island of Carpathus, now Scarpanto, and the "Carpathian old man" was Proteus, who lived and no doubt practiced his quick change tricks there.—London Spectator.

Fooled His Subjects.

King Erricus of Sweden publicly confessed that he was a sorcerer and magician. He was the owner of an enchanted cap, which he pretended enabled him to control the spirits and change the direction of the winds at pleasure. So firmly did his subjects believe in the supernatural powers of their ruler that when a storm arose they would exclaim, "Ah, the king is again wearing the magic cap!"

What She Misses.

"I suppose you miss your husband terribly?"

"No; I can't say that I do. I was a golf widow for years before he died, but it does seem strange not to have him phone that he is going to be late for dinner."—Detroit Free Press.

[illegible] That Failed.

The old Emperor William used to tell a story against himself which well serves to illustrate "that most gratuitous form of error, prophecy." When the emperor was only King of Prussia he saw one day among his troops an untidy looking lieutenant. "Who is that man?" he asked. "An officer," he was told, "who has just left the Danish service and joined the Prussian." "That man will never get on in the army," said the monarch; and he used to add in telling the story, "The man was Moltke, and my judgment of him gives you the measure of my insight."

Bluffs Sometimes Win.

The Chinese tell a story about a tiger that was led by a monkey to a field where a fat mule was grazing. The tiger, who had never seen a mule before, licked his chops. But the mule looked up languidly at the monkey and said:

"Friend monkey, heretofore you have always brought me two tigers. How is it you bring me only one today?"

The bluff was so excellent that the tiger made off as fast as he could go.

AGED WOMAN

Run Down and Feeble—Made Strong By Vinol.

So many people in Charleroi and vicinity are in Mrs. Wickersham's condition we ask you to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, and if it fails to benefit we will return your money.

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbor asked me to try Vinol and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened run-down system and create strength.

Right here in Charleroi we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure toknow itis doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

WASHINGTON AND CHARLEROI HIGH PLAY A TIE GAME

Through a soggy field, the Charleroi and Washington high school teams plowed Saturday afternoon without the least semblance of a score, the game ending the same as the one the year before had ended. Neither team was able to get a good start and nothing but straight football availed either for gains.

A crowd of possibly 800 or 1,000 turned out to see the big struggle of the year and howled themselves hoarse. Washington brought along a crowd of rooters.

Charleroi kicked to Washington, beginning the game. Stahlman booted the ball far into the Washington territory. There it remained for the rest of the quarter, without either team making first down. Nothing but punting took the oval away from its fixed position.

First down in the game was made by Charleroi after the second period had started, by successive line plunging and end runs. Haney got away with six yards and Eagye with a good gain just after and things looked bright for Charleroi. Then a freak play directly due to the muddy field and muddy ball caused the ball to be lost. The half ended in Charleroi's territory with Washington pushing hard.

"Butch" Lowstuter, who was out the first half of the game by reason of an injured hand, went in the third period in spite of his injury and renewed vigor characterized the local playing. Stahlman kicked to Washington. Washington came back strong and the entire second half was a duplication of the first half, with neither team getting an advantage. However Charleroi high made the biggest number of first downs and helped some in arriving at a mental conclusion as to the superiority of the team. The Washington line was heavier than Charleroi and the backfields were evenly matched. In tackling Charleroi had the better of the fuss. Time after time the Charleroi ends, Piersol and Herman stopped good gains by picking off the man with the ball in spite of heavy interference. The backs and line put up the best game in their career.

Next Saturday Charleroi high will play a morning game here with Braddock high school. This will be another hard one, and a close score is anticipated. Score:
